GIVE TO THE WAR CHEST

NEWSPAPER WEEK

The American press will have little time for taking bows during the observance of Newspaper Week from October 1 to 8. There is too much work to be done.

This work is not only the routine reporting of happenings the world over, but it is the fight to keep the flow of news from being cut off by overzealous censorship.

During war time some restrictions on news are unavoidable. The newspapers of the nation have willingly cooperated in withholding the publication of certain stories which might have jeopardized the national security.

In the past year, however, the tendency of government officials to throw a blanket of secrecy over various meetings and conferences on which the people should have some information, has been increasing. At Quebec, for example, restrictions on news were so severe that reporters could do little but talk about the weather, tell how the principals were dressed and speculate as to what was really being discussed behind the closed doors.

At Dumbarton Oaks the press was also stymied by the secretive arrangements which deprived the public of all but a skeleton of the proceedings.

A free people can maintain their freedom in fact as well as in name, only as they keep well informed. A free press is essential to keep them informed. And by a free press we mean not only the right to print all the news except that inconsistent with national safety in war time, but to have unrestricted access to the information which the public is entitled to know.

On the occasion of Newspaper Week 1944 the press of the nation re-dedicates itself to the job of keeping America the best informed nation in the world.

SAFETY'S TEN COMMANDMENTS

With California's hundreds of thousands of children once more making their daily trek schoolward, motorists should remember that the signs reading "Slow—Schools!" are to be heeded—diligently!

It should also be remembered by the person behind the wheel that youngsters, in spite of numerous warnings, often dash out into the street heedless of the traffic. At other times their childish impulses cause them to act indifferently about getting out of the way of oncoming cars.

However annoying this latter attitude may be to the driver, he should not assume that it is "up to the kids to get out of the way"—and keep his foot on the gas pedal. The driver, being more mature, must bear the greater share of responsibility for the safety of children on the streets.

But children can do much to protect themselves by following the Ten Commandments of Safety:

1. Start to school early enough so you won't have to rush.
2. Plan the safest trip to and from school—take it every day.
3. Always cross streets at the crossing.
4. Never try to out-run an automobile when crossing a street.
5. Look in both directions before crossing and keep alert until the sidewalk is reached.
6. Obey the traffic officer or safety-patrol boy.
7. Don't dart out into the street from behind parked cars or hedges.
8. Don't linger or play in the streets; use playgrounds, vacant lots, and sidewalks.
9. Ride bicycles on the right side of streets and obey all traffic signs.
10. On highways, always walk on the left side of the road.

ALL OVER—BUT THE DYING

From almost every battle zone except the China front, the war news reports a succession of triumphs for Allied arms. Our enemies, no longer arrogant, are tasting bitter defeat. In the European theater the end seems very near, as the German Rhineland is rocked to its foundations by aerial and artillery bombardments that surpass anything in the history of modern warfare, and as Allied troops swarm into the Reich through holes punched in Nazi lines.

Looking back to the dark days and months which followed Pearl Harbor, when our own forces were reeling under crushing blows, we can give thanks that the tide of battle has turned. But we certainly can't afford to exult and carelessly conclude that it is all over but the shouting. Actually, the toll of human agony which lies ahead—the fearful price we must pay before victory is won—may be worse than anything we have known before.

The most deadly battles, in all likelihood, still lie ahead. Our lengthening casualty rolls since D-Day have brought bitter tragedy into many thousands of American homes. And before we have dictated the peace terms in Berlin and Tokio, tens of thousands of other fine young men will have paid a fearful penalty that we may live to see V-Day. Here at home, the headlines are reassuring; the news is heartening. Out there on the European battlefronts, the boys who are doing the fighting know it is nearly all over, too—all over, but the dying. Before we let down in our efforts, or celebrate prematurely, let us take sober stock of our still unpaid accounting, in terms of human lives and human bloodshed.

SAFEWAY TO SPONSOR RADIO PROGRAM

Originating directly from the stage of the Opera House in San Francisco, fourteen operas, presented by the San Francisco Opera company, will be broadcast over the Don Lee-Mutual system to listening audiences in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and California. The first of these, "Aida," will be heard on the air, Friday evening, September 29, at 10 p.m.

This special treat for lovers of fine music is being sponsored by the Safeway Stores as a community service and will be featured on practically all stations of the Don Lee-Mutual chain in the aforementioned states. The operas will be heard from 10 o'clock until their conclusion each night except on Sundays when the broadcasting will begin at 4 p.m. The concluding performance will be "Tales of Hoffman," Saturday evening, October 28.

This unprecedented program will embrace established standard works, the repertoire listing only three unfamiliar operas—"Falstaff," "Salome," and "Tales of Hoffman". Included in the cast are the cream of world-famous singers, such as:

Lily Pons, Licia Albanese, Stella Roman, Rise Stevens, Thelma Votipka and Hertha Glaz in the female roles. - Tenors, baritones, and basses include: Alessio de Paolis, John Garris, Frederick Jagel, Raoul Jobin, Charles Kullman, Jan Pearce, George Cehanovsky, Ivan Petroff, Francesco Valentini, Leonard Warren, Lorenzo Alvary, Salvatore Baccaloni, Ezio Pinza and Roberto Silva.

So that music lovers may follow the plot, a forty-page broadcasting program has been prepared containing a synopsis of the story of each opera to be put on the air. In addition it will carry pictures of the stars, dates for the broadcasting of each performance and other interesting data.

These programs may be obtained free by writing to the radio stations handling the program or to Post Office Box 3175, San Francisco 19.

S. M. Junior College

San Mateo junior college girls will welcome the new freshman coeds to the college with the semi-annual tea sponsored by the Associated Women Students, this Friday afternoon. A program, refreshments, and general get-together to become acquainted are planned. In the evening the men students at the college will have a smoker for students and faculty men. Former coaches, now officers in the Navy are to be guest speakers, while refreshments and movies of outstanding sports events are planned also.

Enrollment figures at the college are higher than they were last year, and the number of men students has increased. More students are enrolling daily in both the day classes and in the extensive evening program, the last being offered by the college adult center.

During the month of October the Peninsula Forum of the adult center will offer four public programs on the national elections. The speaker, October 2, will be Dr. Malcolm Eiselen of the College of the Pacific who will speak on "The Voter and His Party". The Burlingame and San Mateo Business and Professional Women's clubs are assisting in presenting this series of talks, planned to be of real help to the voting public. Starting time is 7:30 p. m. in the college auditorium.

Mrs. America Meets The War --

Are you choosy about choices? Feeling Friday frustration? Then beat the buyers' bugaboo by shopping on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays instead of waiting for the weekend rush. It's the habit of chickens to scratch and ducks to swim; of women to button their coats to the left; and men to button them to the right. But the habit that has United States food stores baffled is Mrs. America's tenacious habit of marketing on Fridays and Saturdays. Let's take advantage of the middle of the week specials all stores are running now.

Have any blue tokens left? Remember, Mrs. America, there are only two more days to use 'em up. And if you don't have an even ten of the little blue discs, pool yours with your neighbor, and split the purchase!

A number of important home canned foods were crossed off the ration list automatically when their corresponding commercial varieties went off. Now, if you or your club group sell home preserved fruits or jellies or home canned vegetables, you need no longer collect points for them. Points must still be collected on sales of home canned ketchup, chili sauce, and canned fruits and juices. However, the point value of these home canned items is far below that of the commercial product. For instance — a 14 ounce bottle of chili sauce listed at 70 points when commercially packed, takes no points at all for the home canned variety! And a 13 ounce can of peaches is now listed at 30 blue points, but a one quart home canned jar calls for only 10 blue points!

Price-conscious Mrs. America who shops for beef will be interested in knowing these few facts — no beef may be pre-cut for stew at a price higher than ground beef — no fat may be added to any cut or piece of meat other than naturally attached fat — all cuts of boneless rump must have ALL bone removed — all excess fat on the tenderloin muscle must be removed.

DIRECT FROM RANCH TO YOU!

Meat is needed in your everyday diet - especially during these days of long and strenuous hours. Our fighting men and women are given generous allowances of meat to maintain their health and general condition.

Civilians need it too, and those troublesome points are necessary to insure an equal division of the supply. You can get the maximum food value from your rations if you use your points for FARMERS quality meats.

During the summer vacation period our market will remain closed Monday each week.
